Freedom of Information Act request: disappearance of Madeline McCann

I write further to my previous email concerning your Freedom of Information Act request to the Home Office for information about a possible review or re-investigation into the disappearance of Madeleine McCann.

Unfortunately we are unable to provide you with a substantive response to your request at this time. We are still considering your request and assessing the public interest in confirming or denying whether or not we hold some of the information you have requested.

I apologise that this is taking longer than anticipated. Your request remains a priority and we will reply to you as soon as possible once we have fully considered and balanced our public interest considerations. We therefore advise you that we have revised the deadline to provide you with a substantive response to the 18th June 2010.

This letter should not be taken as conclusive evidence that the information you have requested is or is not held by the Home Office.

May I thank you again for your interest in the Home Office and for your patience in this matter.

Yours sincerely,
